

FREE Car Wash and Discounted Fuel Service

at Watson Court Staff Overflow Parking Lots

Starting Tuesday, September 6, Stanford Health Care and Lucile Packard Children's Hospital staff using the Watson Court staff overflow parking lot will have access to Yoshi, a contactless gas and automotive service company that provides gas delivery and car wash for staff who use the Watson Court Staff Overflow Parking lots. Stanford Medicine Transportation Services staff will patrol both lots for peace of mind and provide any assistant you may need.

Gas price may vary, please check price on the app by tapping the $ icon before ordering.

With Yoshi You Can:

Earn a FREE detail car wash, if you park at least 12 times in 1 month!

Details on how to claim your car wash will be provided with your offer code.

(Upon use of the free car wash, the value $89 will be reported to payroll as taxable income)

Yoshi fueling temporarily suspended
Car wash program still active

All You Have To Do:

Apply for a free hang tag permit by scanning the QR code.

Please indicate your delivery preference on the form, either via mail or pick up.

Use the Watson Court staff overflow parking lots and display your permit.

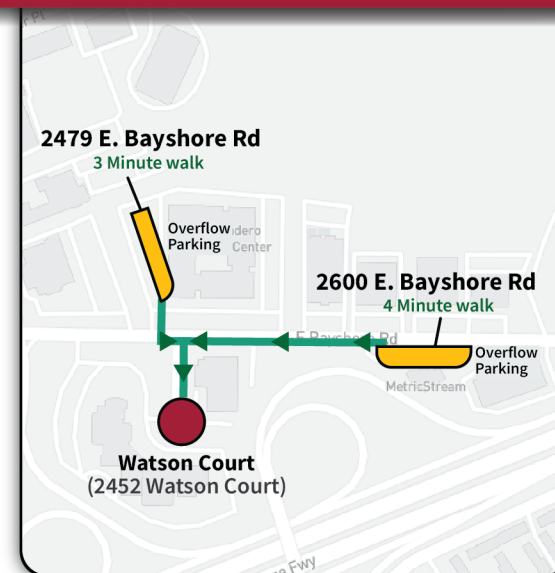

Patrol staff will record your permit number to track your usage for a free car wash.

Did you know?

You can get a FREE LYFT RIDE to and from Watson Court when you take Caltrain to/from Palo Alto Caltrain Station and California Ave. Caltrain Station.

To learn more about the program, Scan the QR code.

At this time, School of Medicine employees are not eligible for the Yoshi fuel & wash program. Stanford Medicine Transportation Services is in discussion with Stanford University to explore options to expand this program to include School of Medicine staff in the future. An announcement will be made when any changes are made to program eligibility.
