Commuter Spotlight: Juliet Garcia

Meet Juliet Garcia, New Patient Coordinator at Stanford Health Care, who commutes to work using Caltrain!

Commuter Spotlight features staff who choose alternative transportation options as part of their commute to and from the Stanford Medicine Palo Alto campus.

Stanford Medicine Transportation Services is thrilled to spotlight Juliet Garcia – New Patient Coordinator at Stanford Health Care (SHC), who chooses to commute sustainably from San Jose to the Stanford Medicine Palo Alto campus!

On days Juliet needs to be in the office, she takes the Caltrain from San Jose to Palo Alto, escaping the Bay Area traffic.

Juliet enjoys the many perks of riding Caltrain! She saves money on gas, avoids the stress of driving, and enjoys a relaxing commute. She also likes the new electric Caltrains, which make her commute smoother and more sustainable!

“Since I've been commuting on Caltrain, I make it home 20-30 min sooner than if I was to drive. The New Electric trains are very nice.”

When asked if Juliet would recommend taking public transportation to others, she shared, “Public transportation can be intimidating if you're not used to it. But once you get the hang of it, you'll never want to drive into the office again.”
